Nuclear agreement
Secret

3. It is hereby expressly agreed that the very existence of this Agreement as well as any other agreement relating to the activities defined in Clause 2 hereof, including information about the terms or contents of any such agreement, shall be secret and shall not be disclosed by either party, except as hereinafter provided. The foregoing shall apply notwithstanding the fact that any particular subject of an agreement may carry a lesser classification but for this clause.

Should any subject of an agreement be accorded a higher classification than "secret" by mutual consent of both parties then the highest of such classifications shall apply.

4. The parties will agree on mutually acceptable security procedures which will be reduced to writing, signed by the appropriate agencies and such security procedures will define and determine the proper means and methods for transmittal, distribution, use and storage of secret information which may be required by either party in order to perform effectively any agreement between them. Pending signature of such procedures...
